In recent years, electric vehicles (EVs) have become more popular as people become more conscious of the environment. These vehicles produce fewer emissions than traditional gas-powered cars, and many governments are offering incentives to 19 people to make the switch. However, one of the main challenges with EVs is the lack of charging stations. In many areas, drivers have to travel long distances to find a place to charge their cars. This is changing as more charging stations are being built, making EVs more 20. Another issue is the price; while EVs can save money in the long run, they tend to have higher initial costs compared to gas-powered cars. Despite these challenges, many experts believe that the 21 of electric vehicles will continue to grow. Automakers are constantly improving EV technology, offering more options to consumers, and lowering the costs of production. As more people become aware of the benefits, EVs are expected to become the dominant mode of transportation in the future. With innovations in battery technology and renewable energy, the future of transportation is likely to be both cleaner and more efficient. By making the shift to electric vehicles, we can help reduce pollution and slow the effects of climate change, making our cities 22 places to live.

19. 【A】 (A) encourage (B) eliminate (C) restrict (D) prevent
20. 【C】 (A) outgoing (B) troublesome (C) convenient (D) time-consuming
21. 【B】 (A) decrease (B) adoption (C) reluctance (D) decline
22. 【A】 (A) healthier (B) dirtier (C) noisier (D) more polluted

四、閱讀測驗【請依照段落上下文意，選出最適當的答案】

Urban green spaces, such as parks and gardens, provide a wide range of benefits for both people and the environment. These areas are essential for reducing pollution, as plants absorb harmful gases and produce oxygen. Green spaces also help lower the temperature in cities, providing a cooling effect that mitigates the “urban heat island” phenomenon, where urban areas become significantly warmer than their rural surroundings. This is particularly important in regions that experience extreme heat during summer months. Additionally, urban greenery improves the aesthetic appeal of cities, making them more attractive and pleasant places to live and work.

In addition to environmental benefits, green spaces offer significant mental and physical health advantages for residents. Studies have shown that spending time in nature can reduce stress, improve mood, and increase overall well-being. Green spaces provide areas for physical activity, such as walking, jogging, and cycling, promoting a healthier lifestyle. Children, in particular, benefit from having access to parks, where they can play and engage in physical activity in a safe environment. The presence of nature in urban areas has been linked to lower rates of mental health issues, such as anxiety and depression, as people feel more connected to the natural world.

Green spaces also play a crucial role in promoting social cohesion. Parks and gardens serve as community hubs where people from diverse backgrounds can come together, interact, and build relationships. These areas provide opportunities for social activities such as picnics, festivals, and sports events, fostering a sense of belonging and shared identity among city residents. By offering spaces where people can relax, exercise, and engage with others, urban green spaces help strengthen the social fabric of cities, making them more inclusive and supportive communities.

23. 【B】 What is one of the main environmental benefits of urban green spaces?
- (A) They reduce the risk of natural disasters.
  - (B) They absorb harmful gases and produce oxygen.
  - (C) They promote the growth of urban infrastructure.
  - (D) They create more space for urban development.

24. 【A】 According to the passage, how do urban green spaces contribute to residents’ physical health?
- (A) By offering opportunities for physical activity.
  - (B) By providing free medical services.
  - (C) By reducing the amount of time spent indoors.
  - (D) By increasing the availability of healthy food.
25. 【C】 Which of the following is mentioned as a mental health benefit of green spaces?
- (A) They increase cognitive abilities.
  - (B) They reduce feelings of loneliness.
  - (C) They help people feel more connected to nature.
  - (D) They provide access to professional counseling.
